Thieves Caught.

Chas. M. Wilson, sheriff of Montgomery county passed through here Wednesday morning enroute home. He says he has some thieves in his charge there that have confessed their crimes and among them they claim that they stole several pairs of pants, some coats, shoes, etc., from F. M. Dudley, of this place.

Mr. Dudley has looked through his stock and says that he don't miss the goods, but that it may have been from an odd lot in the back of the store. He gave Mr. Wilson some questions to ask the prisoners.

Mr. Wilson says that they have the finest lot of keys he ever saw, and that he took them and tried them in the locks of most all the business house doors in Montgomery City and failed to unlock but few of them.

Mr. Wilson is a young man and one of the best sheriffs in the state. —Auxvasse Review.

A Rat Story by Capt. J. D. Taylor.

I was in a ship several years ago, on my way to India, and after we had been to sea several weeks we discovered that the ship was swarming with rats, and that they were becoming a dangerous foe in many ways. So the captain ordered the whole crew to making traps, each one to use his own ideas and inventions. A few days after that order was given, it was very amusing to see the fifty or more rat traps made by the crew. But the most peculiar one, and the largest one, and the one that caught the most rats, was made out of a whiskey barrel. The head was sawed out so that it could drop into the barrel. Then they took two nails and drove them through the chimes of the barrel and into the head, so that it would work from the center, and tip or dump anything off of it that touched it, and then come back to its place again. Then they nailed some cheese on to the center of the head and filled the barrel two-thirds full of water, and the next morning they had about half a barrel full of drowned rats, and a good many live ones. While the other traps that the crew had made each caught some rats, none caught so many as the old whiskey barrel trap.

If your face is blurred with specks and spots floating before your eyes, or you have pains on the right side under the ribs, then your liver is deranged, and you need a few doses of HERBINE to regulate it. Price 50 cts. Cason's Pharmacy.

W. L. Owen's Monument Trade.

W. L. Owen our home tombstone manufacturer has been enjoying an unusual good trade this spring. Within the past few weeks he has received two car loads of some of the finest marble ever brought to Montgomery City. This with Mr. Owen's superior workmanship and most reasonable prices, is the secret of his flourishing trade this spring. This week he received a carload of goods and he will at once put up the $350 family monument for M. N. Mallerson, and also one for Mrs. Hardin Ham for $150. Last week he put up a family monument for T. M. Merritt, of near Middletown, that cost $200. Two weeks ago, he finished and put up a $100 monument over the grave of Father Shaw at Jonesburg. During the last few days Mr. Owen has paid out for freight alone, $295, which indicates that it costs something to handle monuments.

Mr. Owens has been here some five or six years and in that time has built up his present business by doing first class work and dealing honestly with the public. He owns a nice little home here and can always be found ready to make good any statements of his in regard to his work.

Base-ball

Our home team went up to Centralia Sunday and played the boys at that place. They met with an overwhelming defeat. Score 14 to 2. Shackleford pitched good ball and deserved credit, but he was poorly supported. Morris of Centralia team also pitched good ball allowing the Montgomery team only 4 hits. Our team is composed of boys whose experience in ball playing is somewhat limited but they are growing better with each game as their captain, Shackleford, well understands the game. Manager Sabourin has ten games engaged and some good games are expected.

Cultivating Corn.

The farmers who advocate deep cultivation of corn, should, without prejudice, consider some of the objections offered by those who practice shallow culture, especially those men who give that last deep plowing when laying by the corn. Deep plowing cuts the roots of the corn badly, and if a drought follows the corn suffers and the growth is retarded to such an extent that it often does not ripen until after frost. Abundance of rain is the salvation of a corn field when thus deeply cultivated. Then weed seeds which were buried deeply are brought to the surface and given opportunity to germinate. Farmers in the great corn growing sections who are making a success of this crop are not disturbing the soil below three or four inches. This top soil, however is most thoroughly cultivated, and is kept clear of weeds. The method of cultivation gives the dust mulch which is a great conservator of moisture. If such corn cultivation doctrine is not according to your faith, make a test of it on that patch that you consider not very promising, and perhaps you may be converted.—Colman's Rural World.

P. P. Paxton is again on top. Since the sad misfortune that happened to his eye last November Press has been in very bad shape, but his indomitable will power and tenacity has again brought him to his former self. Perry Redman was jubilant when he did not have to divy up the spoils of some body's hen roost, but since Press has regained enough strength to be out late of a moonlight night and battle with vicious dogs Perry is sad for it cuts his profits in two. Press says they had this old coon dead and buried several times, but he always comes out on top. He has for the past two weeks been at his old stomping grounds, Algermissen's store, where he talks politics, his last raid he made on some neighbors hen house, flour, feed, etc. He wants all his old friends to call on him at Algermissen's where he is at home.

Mr. James Brown of Portsmouth, Va. over 90 year of age suffered for years with a bad sore on his face. Physicians could not help him. DeWitt's Hazel Salve cured him permanently. City Drug Store.

starting in the feet or ankles comes from a weak or diseased heart—a heart that cannot keep up the circulation. The blood then settles in the lower limbs where the watery portions ooze out into surrounding tissues causing bloating and swelling. The heart must be strengthened and built up before the dropsy can be cured to stay; and the best of all heart medicines is Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

"Heart disease made my feet swell so that they had to be lanced in several places. One bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure helped me and twelve bottles worked a complete cure."
